No motive has been established

Man dies by own hand after killing his in-law

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

One woman is dead and three others were injured at the hands of a Perkinston man and no one knows yet just why he allegedly did the things that he did.

Marsha Ladner, 34, 3580 Rd. 331, Perkinston, in the Crane Creek community, was allegedly killed by her brother-in-law, Rickey Ladner, Sunday night.

Ladner, 26, Rd. 331 Perkinston, then left her home, went to D&K Quick Stop in Kiln and shot his co-worker William "Billy" LeBlanc through the window of LeBlanc's vehicle with a .12 gauge shotgun, hitting him in the face and neck area, Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

Ladner then headed north on Miss. Hwy. 59 to Enterprise where he accelerated to a high rate of speed, shot himself in the head with the shotgun, veered into the other lane and struck head-on a man and a 10 year-old child.

"A motive for the shootings has not yet been established. If I told you a motive now it would be pure speculation on my part," Peterson said.

Marsha's husband Michael, who is also Rick-ey's brother, was working offshore at the time of the incident and was flown home by helicopter, Peterson said.

Peterson said that it is known that Marsha was alive at approximately 9:15 p.m. Sunday because she was called into work by Gulfport Memorial Hospital.

"She was a registered nurse and was on call that night. At 2 a.m. she had not showed up for work and the sheriff's department was notified. A deputy responded to the call and thought that no one was home. At 5:40 a.m. a call came in from D&K that LeBlanc was shot. Later, we received a call from Clark County, concerning the vehicle

Bay police patrols fall short, councilman says

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A Bay St. Louis city councilman lashed out Tuesday at city police for failing to show up at some major gatherings in the city.

During a brief but heated exchange, Councilman Thomas M. Farve told Police Chief Frank McNeil that police by-passed the St. Rose de Lima annual fair over the 4th of July weekend, as well as a recent softball tournament.

He also complained that police are inadequately patrolling drug-prone areas of the city. "I'm unhappy with your policing," Farve told the chief during a City Council workshop. "They don't patrol good enough."

McNeil seemed surprised by Farve's attack in general, and specifically at news that police weren't at the St. Rose fair. The chief took issue with Farve's contention that his department isn't adequately addressing drug dealing in the city.

McNeil said city police had participated in six recent drug raids. Over the weekend, he said, the city drew huge crowds at two church fairs, as well as a celebration at the casino. The department handled 68 calls Saturday night and 78 calls Sunday night, McNeil said.

The explanation didn't satisfy Farve, however. "That's a bunch of bull," Farve said, contending the department had plenty of officers to have on hand at the other functions. Farve said he'd heard officers say McNeil told them to visit the St. Rose fair, but they decided not to do so.

"Saturday and Sunday at the church fair, the police didn't even show their face. Now, something is wrong" with that, Farve said to McNeil.

At one point, the councilman told McNeil to "stop making excuses" for the police officers' absence from St. Rose.

Farve said there was a relatively minor fight at one point during the St. Rose fair, and police did respond to his call to deal with that.

But Farve contended police should have been at the St. Rose fair in the same fashion they were at the Crab Festival at Our Lady of the Gulf, mingling with the crowd.

Having police present at such functions, said Farve, sets a tone of law and order, averting potential problems.

When police aren't visible, he said, out-of-towners "come in and do any damn thing they want to. And the reason why is, we're easy."

Farve also criticized the department for what he said is a lack of follow-up in patrolling drug-sales areas. As soon as police conduct a drug bust, Farve said, the area isn't patrolled adequately,

County sets budget talks

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Hopeful citizens and officials have begun to circle the Hancock County Courthouse, with budget proposals in hand.

The Board of Supervisors took in several budget requests Tuesday, and agreed to begin 8 a.m. workshop sessions July 12 to piece together next fiscal year's spending plan.

"We need to jump on it as quickly as possible," Chancery Clerk Michael Ncaise advised the board of the upcoming budget process.

One early request for additional money came from the Hancock County Firefighters' Association, which wants to boost the $16,300 salary the county pays for the combined position of fire marshal, fire coordinator and fire investigator.

The association's vice president at large, Pete Lestelle of the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department, told supervisors the salary should be boosted, at least in increments, to put it more in line with what's paid in Harrison and Jackson counties.

As it stands, Lestelle said, the fire marshal's salary is as low as an entry-level firefighter. The duties, Lestelle said, are comparable to an assistant fire chief.

Lestelle gave the board a resolution recently adopted by the association, which represents all the fire departments and firefighters within in the county.

Supervisors said they'd consider the potential salary hike during budget deliberations.

Other budget proposals were submitted by the sheriff's and tax assessor's offices, and the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center.

In other action Tuesday, the board agreed to a request from Sheriff Ronnie Peterson to allow purchase of four new vehicles. Peterson said his department's share of revenues from Jubilee Casino should cover costs of the new cars.

The sheriff said four new cars should have his department's vehicular stock up to par, replacing older, high-mileage cars.

In an unrelated matter Tuesday, Peterson reported that construction is complete on a project to create an area within the jail for detaining youths.

Ward Four meeting set

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning officials want to hear from residents of Ward 4 in a special meeting set for Thursday.

The 7 p.m. meeting is the first of a series of sessions the commission is holding to draft details of a comprehensive development plan for the city.

The meeting will be held at Bay High School's auditorium.

While the meetings are open to the public at large, the commission hopes to concentrate on issues unique to different sections of the city during the initial meetings.

Thursday's session will focus on the area of the city represented by councilman Tad Black. The L-shaped ward is bounded generally by Buslog Street on the west, Bay Oaks Drive on the south, Citizen Street on the north and Beach Boulevard on the east. It also includes the area between Toulme Street and Beach Boulevard, as far north as the CSX tracks.

Waveland's trash returns to agenda

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL

Tuesday's regular meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Waveland was short and to the point.

Mayor Stella Frlot presided and kept the meeting to its purpose. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved, bills were accepted, recommendations of the Planning and Zoning Commission were approved, as were several sell backs.

The meeting sailed along smoothly with the approval of a request by Ida Machuik, of the March of Dimes, to register participants for its walkathon in October. Carmel Marziale's appointment as deputy court clerk was also approved, but Alderman Stan Weidman asked Mayor Frlot if Marziale would get extra compensation or salary adjustment in her new position.

The mayor advised him to "look at the budget" under courts to see what the job pays. Weidman voted no to Marziale's appointment.

Weidman also asked why Duke Levy was not present to address the board on city maintenance, mainly on the issue of trash that was the topic of discussion at the aldermen's last meeting.

Mayor Frlot said she and Levy had just finished measuring streets. Time had gotten away from them and she had sent him home.

Weidman asked what had been done about the trash, grass and other refuse on the streets. "Is it possible to have work crews on the weekends?" he inquired.

The mayor reminded him that "the city does not pick up

Correction

There was an error in reporting on the meeting of Waveland's Board of Mayor and Aldermen in the Sunday, June 26 issue of the newspaper. Mayor Stella Frilot was not present at the meeting. Mayor pro-tem Barbara Rappold was in charge of the meeting and had to leave early. It was Rappold who advised those present that the registrar of voters was a mandated position that paid $100 per month.

Also, in the front page story on Sunday, July 13, about the shooting of Jessie Hackney, it was reported that the altercation between Hackney and Dennis J. Root took place at Root's home. The shooting took place at the Hackney home in Bay Side Park.

In the holiday roundup story, also on the front page of Sunday, July 3 paper, Detective Terry Eley's name was in error.

Crapemyrtles deserve a place

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Crapemyrtle is one of the most popular flowering landscape shrubs and small trees planted in Mississippi. Some say it is overused or even abused in landscapes, but what else is so widely adapted and provides such vivid summer color?

The first crapemyrtle I saw in bloom in the Starkville area this year was on May 20. I believe it was the cultivar Muskogee which is a light lavender color. Muskogee is described as the earliest cultivar of the lavender flowered group developed at the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C. With crapemyrtles beginning to flower this early, they may bloom for several months. I'm sure this is the case in the southern part of the state where the early crapemyrtles should have been blooming for a couple of weeks.

The later flowering red crapemyrtles planted adjacent to the blooming Muskogee plants don't even show flower buds yet. They do show an early infection of powdery mildew. Powdery mildew is one of the most serious diseases of crapemyrtle.

While powdery mildew generally starts on the tender new foliage, with the right conditions, it moves to the flower buds. Once the flower buds are infected, the life of the flowers is shortened and the overall appearance is diminished. Powdery mildew gives the new growth the appearance of having been heavily dusted with flour.

If you're wondering why the watermelon red crapemyrtle has powdery mildew and the lavender Muskogee doesn't, it is because Muskogee has a high level of genetic resistance to the disease. Most of the crapemyrtle cultivars developed and released by the National Arboretum are disease resistant. The plant breeders used a powdery mildew resistant parent in making the crosses.

In addition to selecting for mildew resistance, the breeders looked at plant shape and height, flower color, fall leaf color and several other traits. The best seedlings were named and released to the nursery trade for increase and introduction to the public.

Many of the mildew resistant cultivars are now available in nurseries and garden centers. Some of the pink varieties include Biloxi, Comanche, Hopi, Miami, Osage, Pecos, Sioux, Tuscarora and Tuskegee. Two white varieties are Acoma and Natchez. Lavender varieties available are Apalachee, Lipan, Muskogee, Wichita, Yuma and Zuni.

These cultivars vary in mature height from 7 feet (Pecos and Hopi) to 30 feet (Natchez). All are very hardy, have excellent fall leaf color, have resistance to powdery mildew, and a period of flowering that lasts from 70 days (Tuscarora) to 120 days (Muskogee).

Sooty mold continues to be a problem with crapemyrtles.

Manage this foliage discoloring fungus by controlling the aphids that feed on the young, tender vegetative and flowering shoots. The sweet honeydew substance excreted by the feeding aphids is deposited on the leaves and serves as a substrate for the sooty mold fungus.

By controlling the aphids, there is no honeydew and no sooty mold. Various pesticides are available to spray on crapemyrtles to control the aphids. An approved Orthene formulation to control aphids can be painted around each stem near the ground level. Directions are on the product label.

Recycling

place the last week in July. County officials had operated recycling convenience centers at the locations until a state grant which paid for the program expired recently. The centers were removed then, leaving unincorporated area residents no way to dispose of their recyclable wastes.

Supervisor Howard Lizana has been pushing to reinstate recycling, and said Tuesday he thinks he's lined up volunteers to man at least two of the collection points.

The program will be accepting clear, green and brown glass; clear and green plastic soda bottles; clear and white milk bottles; newspapers; and aluminum and steel cans.

The county agreed to pay Gulf Coast Recycling $200 per trip to collect the materials -- twice as much as the county had hoped to pay.

Kehrer told the board he'd just taken over the directorship of Gulf Coast Recycling, filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Penny Penrose.

Kehrer said tentative plans call for opening a small center in Hancock County to process the recyclable materials collected here, rather than having to truck the refuse to Harrison County.

Until that happens, however, Kehrer said the recycling operation has to charge $200 per trip, for hauling about 40 cubic yards of the materials to the existing center.

Supervisors say the recycling convenience centers have been sorely missed by residents accustomed to using them. And the program should help the county meet a state mandate to reduce how much refuse is trucked to area landfills.

Kehrer said the exact date the Hancock County program will start, and its hours of operation will be announced soon.

She told him that with the amount of crews the city has available, "we are doing a phenomenal job" (of keeping the city clean).

Mayor Frilot said that the city was "making attempts to hire new people" but that the administration was not allowed to hire over a certain number of employees during an election year (her term expires this summer).

The mayor reiterated that it was not a function of the city to pick up after its citizens and that people have to start disposing of certain items themselves.

"What do we have to do to clean up our city?" Weidman asked.

The mayor further addressed his concern by advising him to propose an ordinance where people would be arrested for the accumulation of trash, if he so chose.

Autopsies will be done on the bodies of Marsha and Rickey Ladner.

"What we don't know right now is what Rickey did between the hours of 9:15 p.m. Sunday and 5:40 Monday morning. We have to find that out. The alleged murder weapon has been recovered and our investigators will be going in the next couple of days to Clark County to get it," Peterson said.

Investigators on the case are Nathan Hoda and George Burleson.

leaving dealers to "fester at the same spot" again.

Farve said he sometimes leaves for work at 3 a.m. and has seen dealers "just selling their drugs, coming and going" in full view.

McNeil said police were to have been at the St. Rose function, and he had no immediate explanation for their absence. He took issue, however, with the idea that Bay St. Louis is seen as an "easy" target for trouble-makers.

The chief asked Farve to have him paged by beeper any time Farve thinks police need to be on hand. "Beep me. I would not have had this happen," he said of the St. Rose matter.

Wednesday, McNeil said two reserve division officers were to have been at the St. Rose fair. He said Farve should have let him know immediately that they weren't, so the chief could have corrected the problem.

"I presumed it was alright," he said of the assigned police coverage, only to hear Farve's complaint several days later.

The building project has been plagued with delays since last summer.

Supervisors reaffirmed an earlier decision to pave some of the dirt roads in McLeod Park, a project expected to cost some $30,000. Recreation officials said they were unsure whether the supervisors actually had committed to the project.

As it stands, dry weather leaves cook-outs covered with dirt from the dusty roads, and wet weather leaves park-goers mired in muck, supervisors were told.

A separate issue -- how to provide gasoline for park patrol cars on the weekends and holidays -- prompted a prolonged discussion.

Park officials said they can't get gas from the county's storage facility when it's closed, because they don't have a key.

Park patrol cars sometimes run out of gas before refills are available during regular working hours, supervisors were told.

The supervisors agreed to let park officials have a key to the county's gas supply, but only if that's agreeable to the county's road superintendent, who wasn't at Tuesday's meeting.

In another matter, supervisors appointed Edwin Moffatt to a five-year term on the West Hancock Volunteer Fire Department commission.

CUEVAS QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The big 1994 July Fourth weekend is now history. We had a lot of visitors along the Coast as our highways and roadways were almost bumper to bumper with traffic.

The increase in traffic is good for our residents and business community.

I was in a big traffic jam Sunday night on North Beach Boulevard while viewing the Casino Magic Fireworks display.

Vehicles were bumper to bumper, all parking spaces were filled, and many of us ended up on the roadway parked until the fireworks were over. There just weren't any vehicles moving.

It sure has been a long time since I have seen so many vehicles in the Cedar Point area.

The last time I can recall was when the power boat races were held in the Bay many years ago.

The fireworks display was the best I have witnessed in person since the mid-50's in Washington, D.C.

There had to be the most boats ever in the Bay at night, too, as they were anchored boat to boat.

I am sure the crowd will increase next year as others find out about the big Casino Magic spectacular.

Efforts are underway for Hancock County to have a covered arena.

This is not a new project, as others have tried several times before.

Timing may have a lot to do with the success of such a venture, and this may be the perfect time.

At a workshop last week the Hancock County Board of Supervisors heard from Glen Hamilton, a representative from Jim (Buck) Ross' office.

There are a number of Hancock residents interested in horses and livestock-related events.

District Three Supervisor Howard Lizana has been appointed as chair of a commission, and various organizations will appoint a representative to find a location and try to determine the cost of project.

I am hoping the commission will come back with some good answers and Hancock County will have a covered arena.

Pearl River Community College is gearing up for the Fall session.

PRCC has been the stepping-off point in higher education for many of Hancock County's high school graduates over the years.

New student registration is set for July 12-15, which is next week.

If you have just finished high school, or even a few years ago, and haven't attended college, you may want to look at the many programs offered by PRCC.

If you want more information, you may visit the campus at Poplarville, or review the special section in last Sunday's issue of The Echo. If you need a copy, just ask at our front desk for one.

I just received word on Wednesday from Aileen Sauzer, president of the Hancock County Food Pantry, they are in serious need of a window air condition unit.

Several years ago when I changed the cooling system in my home, I had a used unit and made a presentation of it to the Food Pantry and it is still being used.

The big need for an air conditioner is now in the reception area where clients are interviewed.

Temperatures have been running in the 90 degree range with fans and volunteers cannot stand the heat.

If you have a window unit and not using it, you may consider making a donation to the Food Pantry.

If you can help, give Mrs. Sauzer a call at 255-1255.

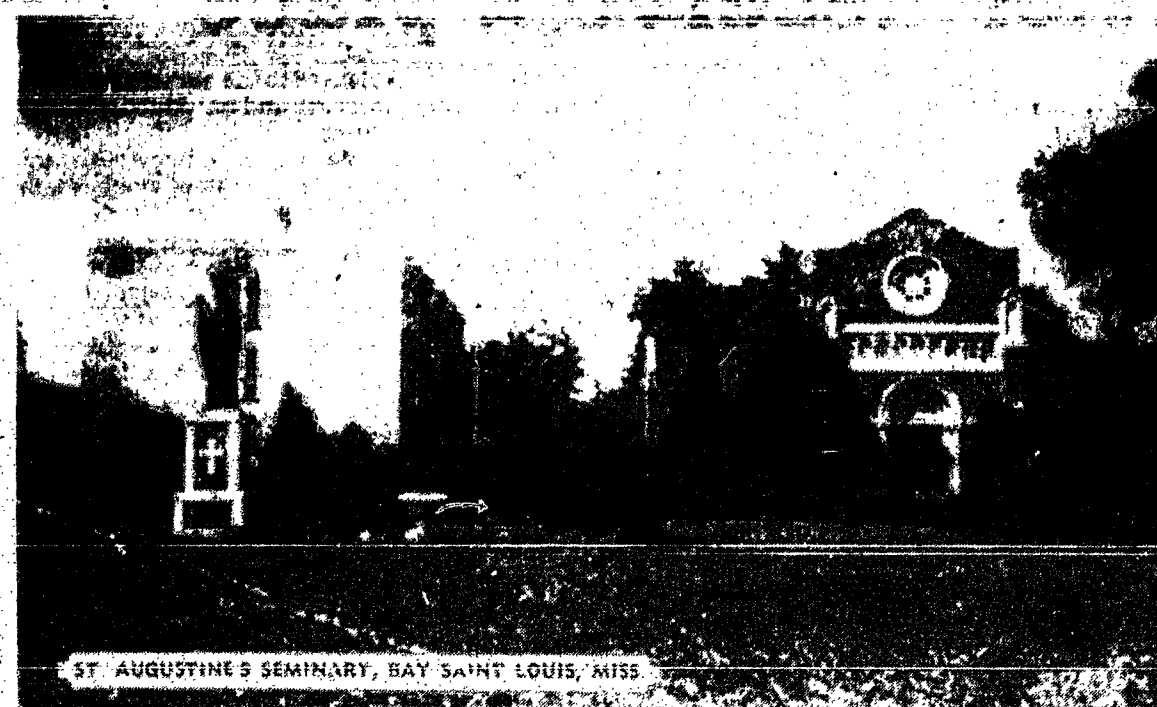

I have heard several complaints from residents of Waveland about dogs on the loose.

As most of you know, there are dog ordinances within our cities.

One thing some of these loose dogs do is tear into bags of garbage and thus throw litter all over the place. Others threaten children and even adults that they cannot walk the streets safely.

Many people have dogs for pets and they take good care of them. Keep them in a fenced yard, feed them and provide proper veterinarian care for them. These owners of pets have to be commended.

All dog owners should keep their pets under control and follow all ordinances.

St. Augustine Catholic Church and Seminary, Bay St. Louis, was a showplace on Highway 90 (Ulman Avenue) for many years. The grounds were manicured and covered with many camellias. (Card photo is courtesy of Charlene Dickinson of Bay St. Louis, who received it in a collection from her late grandmother, Mrs. Rose Ernst, a camp owner in Waveland for many years.) The Echo welcomes photos older than 25 years for publication. They will be returned to their owners.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

House takes misstep on Bosnia

A Congress frustrated with both the Bush and Clinton Administrations' failed efforts to end the bloodshed in the former Yugoslavia, has led to a decisive House vote to force the president to lift an international arms embargo against Bosnia.

The Senate is already on record with a similar measure that would force Clinton to abandon the U.N. embargo on weapons shipments to Bosnia's outgunned government forces.

I have never been to Yugoslavia, nor have I been chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. But as a member of the Committee on Armed Services, I have had the opportunity to talk with the former commander of U.N. troops in Yugoslavia and to visit personally with the Joint Chiefs of Staff of our nation.

Because of the many discussions I have had with these military leaders, I feel, as do they, that Congress has made a grave mistake.

A little over a year ago, General Lewis MacKenzie, a Canadian in charge of U.N. forces in Yugoslavia, came before the Committee on Armed Services to discuss the fighting.

He summed up his remarks by saying "Ladies and gentlemen, you have three serial killers. One has killed 15, one has killed 10, and one has killed five, and I do not buy the argument that we need to rush in and save the one who has killed five."

Later that year, based on those disturbing words, I cornered the chairman of the Joint Chief of Staff, Colin Powell. Being the good general that he is, and it not being his job to get involved in foreign policy, I had to ask him four times whether he felt we should get involved militarily in the former Yugoslavia. After much prodding, he reluctantly said, "No."

The cultural and religious hatreds that fuel this war are intense. Also, Bosnia's terrain is so rugged and mountainous that during World War II, 30 German divisions dispatched to Yugoslavia were unable to gain complete control of the area.

Since then, the former nation of Yugoslavia has amassed a ten-year supply of weapons. According to Powell, even if the borders were sealed today, those weapons would provide the necessary firepower to sustain this war for another decade.

I seriously doubt the region needs a House amendment that authorized up to $200 million in military equipment and training for Bosnia's government forces.

Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Gen. John Shalikashvili, Defense Secretary William J. Perry and Deputy Secretary of State Strobe Talbott also have warned that the recent lifting of the embargo could undercut the fragile multilateral peace efforts in Bosnia.

For those members of Congress who supported lifting of the ban, I can't sympathize with their argument that the U.S. has "sat back and waited."

In two years, U.S.-led air drops and U.N. food convoys have delivered 272,000 tons of food and emergency supplies to besieged Bosnian civilians. The supplies undoubtedly saved thousands of lives during the winters of 1992 and 1993.

To cross the imaginary line that could possibly Americanize this war, is intolerable. Until the Serbs, the Croats and Muslims honestly believe it is in their best interest to end this bloody conflict themselves, peace will be impossible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

County resident feels garbage fee should be more equitable

Dear Editor,

I guess that because today five dollars is small change to most people, no one minds paying it for a service if they get fair value. The keynote here is "fair value."

But to some of us on fixed, meager incomes, $5 means quite a lot, especially if it is grossly unfair, not only to us, but to our environment and landfill space.

In Hancock County we have had garbage collections service since April 1 for which $5 per month, or $54 annual pickup fee is charged.

Now, $5 per month is not much, provided you use the service a couple times every month, or in most cases weekly.

A couple living together probably generates a can full of garbage every week or two. A family with two or three kids can generate several cans full each week, and with a flat rate collection fee, this is a real bargain for them.

There is no incentive to recycle or to buy fewer disposable items or those packaged in recyclable or reusable containers.

So it is an even better bargain to place as many as seven containers per week at curbside for a fixed $5 charge per month. To them there is no need to conserve, recycle and purchase less throw-away items. We have become a throw-away society in America. Our environmental destruction and litter is proof of it.

I, however, live alone, as I am sure many others do, and have a fixed income of only $400 per month. I have never been on welfare or food stamps, so $5 means a whole lot to me.

In three months I have generated only two cans full of garbage. So far I have paid $15 for three months collection. One month I had not enough garbage to place the container out. Yet I was charged for that month.

When the service was started I wrote the board of supervisors twice, explaining that a flat rate fee was unfair, and asked them to pass my correspondence on to the newly created Solid Waste Management District.

It is obvious that a family of five generates almost five times as much garbage as one person. Why not a charge per garbage can or bag that is tossed out? I never received an answer to my correspondence.

It seems they could care less about "fairness" or incentives to save landfill space, our environment or expenses as long as they get their money.

We already pay a flat rate fee of $35 per month for our sewage in the county. A family of five also generates almost five times as much sewage and water usage as one person.

While I realize that the sewage system would be difficult to monitor, the garbage collection system is very easy to monitor. Simply charge for each can or bag picked up.

That would not only be fair, it would also give some people incentive to waste less, and not use so many disposables; helping our environment and saving tax dollars by using less expensive landfill space and placing out cans and bags that are filled up.

In the September 1993 issue of Good Housekeeping was a reprint of a Wall Street Journal article which was titled "Pay-As-You Throw: Will Make You Throw Away Less."

According to the article, over 1,000 U.S. communities now charge money for every bag or can of garbage residents toss out.

In Seattle residents throw away an average of only one can a week, compared to the 3.5 they tossed out in 1981.

This is the system Hancock County should adopt. Who knows, it may even work in the city.

Think of the landfill space it would save. And think about how fair it would be to those of us who don't generate as much trash and garbage as others.

Naturally, Donald C. Holt

Planned activities beat boredom blues

By Anna Minor
MSU Ag Communications

With summer vacation in full swing, parents are hearing those dreaded words, "I'm bored!"

But summer can be the most exciting time in a child's year with a little planning and creativity.

Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist at Mississippi State University, said many fun activities are available for children if someone is there to organize them.

"Parents should involve their children in activities that are appropriate for their ages and interests," Jarratt said.

"For younger children, activities that involve adult supervision, such as day camps or sports teams, are always fun."

Older youth may find a part-time summer job or volunteer work. Paid and volunteer work teach young people the importance of responsibility and money management.

"Teens who work also should plan fun activities for the summer. All work and no play is no fun," Jarratt said.

Summer is also a good time to develop hobbies, write letters to friends or read books.

Jarratt encourages parents to restrict television time and to provide alternative activities, such as interesting reading materials.

"Parents should not force each activity to be a learning experience. I think it's totally appropriate to be involved in things that are sheer fun," she said.

Parents also should use the summer to encourage friend-

but young people are more accessible in the summer."

For upcoming 4-H activities, contact the county 4-H extension youth agent.

Another source for summer activities is the local park and recreation department. This city department often provides summer activities such as softball and day camps.

Some park and recreation departments also sponsor programs for children with special needs, such as Special Olympics activities.

For those living close to a college or university, Continuing Education programs offer many diverse learning activities for children of all ages.

Day and boarding camp topics range from archaeology and music to theater and science investigation.

"Many fun summer activities can take place in the backyard," Jarratt said. "Outside picnics, pretend play or tree climbing are a few of the numerous possibilities in a young child's own yard."

For parents looking for an educational activity, libraries and museums offer limitless possibilities. Many libraries sponsor summer activities, such as story hours and summer reading programs.

Local museum trips can be fun and educational for children, especially on a rainy day.

"The key to any fun and successful summer activity is planning. Young people will always be active," Jarratt said.

"It is far better for them to be involved in something positive than to be idle with all of the negatives that go along with it."

Watch cats for eclampsia signs

By Dr. Wynn Jones
Veterinarian
MSU College of Veterinary Medicine

"I have a pregnant 4-year-old cat who seems to be in excellent health. I expect her to deliver in the next week or so. I understand that eclampsia can sometimes be a problem for a pregnant cat. What are the symptoms, and can it be prevented?"

The signs of eclampsia are unmistakable. The mother will start excessive panting and shaking, and she may go into convulsions. She even may have a slightly wild look in her eyes.

The cat's temperature will rise, and her mouth will become rigid. If you see any of these signs, immediately contact your veterinarian.

Sometimes the veterinarian has to inject calcium, steroids and sedatives to return the cat to normal. Fortunately, relief usually is rapid.

If the cat has eclampsia, remove the kittens, and do not let them nurse for several days. You will have to feed the kittens prepared milk or formula with an eyedropper. When eclampsia occurs in the mother, the kittens may suffer from a mineral deficiency.

Eclampsia can be prevented. With today's cat foods, this condition is rather rare. The chief preventive measure is to give a vitamin and mineral supplement with calcium to the pregnant and nursing cat. Also make sure milk is available if she can digest it.

Contact your veterinarian for more information.

"My husband and I have considered getting a dog for our two children — ages 10 and 7. My husband and I had pets growing up, and we would like our children to have the same privilege.

I have heard several theories about how to properly socialize a puppy so it is well-adjusted as an adult dog. What is the best time for a potential owner to have the greatest impact on a puppy?"

Many experts believe the most important stage for an owner to impact the puppy begins at 3 weeks of age and ends at about 12 weeks. During this time, the puppy forms permanent social relationships.

Grocers asked to slice beef prices

Three Mississippi's major grocery retailers have been called on to adjust beef prices to reflect lower cattle prices being experienced in today's cattle markets.

Mississippi Farm Bureau President Don Waller called on the three retailers to respond by conducting special beef promotions that would help bring the supply and demand picture for beef back in line.

"In addition to creating greater demand for beef and helping clear some of the nation's feedlots, such promotions would be positive for the budget-minded consumer," Waller recently stated.

"The beef producers are being financially devastated due to over supply and low demand, associated with higher prices."

Waller reminded the retailers of the beef industry's efforts to produce lean, higher quality beef in response to retail demands created by the consumer.

He called for the same type of response by retailers to the beef industry's current plight, expressing the need for a "cooperative spirit."

Current USDA figures indicate a 15 percent decline in feed-cattle prices over the past year, while choice beef retail prices have shown a slight increase. This has resulted in a record high spread of $1.42 per retail pound between prices at the farm and at the meat market.

The Mississippi farm leader is calling on consumers to support this effort to strengthen the beef industry by urging all local retailers to make the needed adjustments in their beef prices.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Blueberries are a treat

Whether you "pick our own blueberries" at one of the farms in our area, or whether you "pick" the berries at one of the farmers' markets or at the supermarkets or roadside stands, blueberries are a treat.

I like to combine the blueberries with sliced peaches and heap the combination over ice cream or pound cake; and I like blueberries on my breakfast cereal as well.

Blueberry cobbler is another delicious dessert. And, among my special favorites are blueberry pancakes topped with sauce made from the berries. That's really double-dipping! Here's:

BLUEBERRY PANCAKES

BERRY SYRUP

2 cups fresh blueberries
1/3 cup sugar
1 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract

For the pancakes, add berries to your favorite pancake batter or pancake mix. And, for the sauce, wash and crush the berries. Add sugar, lemon juice and salt, mixing well together, and in a saucepan, bring the mixture to the boiling point. Continue boiling for a minutes, then add the vanilla. Stir and let cool.

Chilled, this is an excellent topping for puddings, cake or ice cream. (Makes 1 1/2 cups of sauce)

Another tasty summer dessert is:

BLUEBERRY COBBLER

3 cups fresh blueberries,

cooked
2/3 to 1 cup sugar (to your "sweet tooth" taste)
2 Tbsp. cornstarch
3/4 cup water
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/3 cup milk
3 Tbsp. oil

Mix sugar and cornstarch in a saucepan, stir in the water and boil for a minute, stirring. Add the berries, mix together, and pour into a 1 1/2 quart baking dish. Dot with butter or margarine and sprinkle cinnamon over.

Sift together the flour and salt and baking powder. Combine the milk and oil and add to the dry mixture, stirring with a fork until the mixture forms a ball. Drop by spoonfuls onto the berries, then bake at 425 degrees for 25 or 30 minutes until lightly browned. (6 servings)

Enhanced ultrasounds make obstetrics more accurate

Space-age technology could help Dr. A. Dean Cromartie tell more about the tiny patients he helps bring into the world.

If NASA agrees to fund an ultrasound enhancement study at Stennis Space Center, Cromartie and other obstetricians could get a sharper image of a developing fetus. Word on the funding is expected in July.

"Any type of enhancement of ultrasonic images would be very helpful," said Cromartie, an obstetrician with Women's Clinic in Hattiesburg.

"The more refined they become, the more information people can glean from them — and the more help it can be in a given pregnancy."

Ultrasound pictures use soundwaves to show the structure of a developing fetus. An obstetrician can use an ultrasound to date a pregnancy, determine the number of babies included in the pregnancy, or to determine the well-being of the baby by checking for certain growth or congenital abnormalities, Cromartie said.

Slidell, La. obstetrician Dr. Jason Collins asked officials at NASA's Technology Transfer Office at Stennis to help him find a way to clarify ultrasound images so he could get clearer pictures of a baby's umbilical cord.

That request prompted Dr. Mitchell Krell, an assistant professor of computer science at the University of Southern Mississippi, and NASA to begin working with some existing image-processing technology developed as part of the space program.

"When you see snow on your television screen, that's called noise," Krell explained. "It's something that interferes with the image so you can't see it as clearly as you would like to see it."

Using filters and computers, Krell and David Walter, a NASA specialist in image enhancement, have been able to eliminate much of the noise present in ultrasounds Collins provided for the preliminary study.

Once the noise is reduced, the image can be sharpened and a doctor can get a clearer picture of the fetus, Krell said.

Preliminary work done at attract NASA funding shows that enhancing ultrasound by using computer technology is by adding a computer work station rather than replacing the whole unit. The cost difference could be more than $190,000, he said.

Their initial work led Krell and Walters to speculate further study could take a two-dimensional ultrasound image and make it into a three-dimensional image.

Cromartie thinks such imaging would be "tremendously helpful" in his and other obstetrics practices.

"What these (current) enhancements do is make it simpler and easier to read the ultrasound," Cromartie said. "They maximize the information and minimize the distortion and misinformation."

"... The sorts of enhancements we've seen from Dr. Krell are ways of improving the information that goes to the practitioner. ... What you would like is a 3-D model of the bay inside the uterus. This is the direction they seem to be moving in — and I can assure you that enhancements in image quality are quickly adapted in the field and have almost immediate ramifications," Krell said.

The technology also could go further and possibly produce three-dimensional images of a fetus, which would enable an obstetrician to acquire even more knowledge about a baby's development, he said.

"Hopefully, it will allow (doctors) to identify certain problems more quickly. Hopefully, it will save lives," Krell said.

Much of the work at Stennis involves processing images gathered by satellites and other aircraft, Walters said. Ultrasound enhancement uses much of the same technology and is one of many ongoing projects at Stennis intended to transfer NASA-developed technology to the private sector, he added.

Ultrasound equipment exists that has some enhancement capabilities built in, but that equipment is expensive, Walters said.

If their work is successful, Walters said a physician can upgrade an existing ultrasour.

Refining images

Dr. Mitch Krell, standing, an assistant professor of computer science at the University of Southern Mississippi, and NASA's David Walters work on a computer program to enhance ultrasound images at the Technology Transfer office at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County. If NASA agrees to fund their work, Krell and Walters hope to continue working to improve images shown on ultrasound and eventually produce a three-dimensional picture for obstetricians to use. ## Composting has soil benefits

In Mississippi Gardens

Today I turned my new compost pile for the first time, and this starts a weekly summer chore. It was hot work, and even with the air temperature in the 80s, visible steam wafted up with almost every turn of the shovel.

Last year I made the decision to become a truly active composter and purchased a chipper/shredder. To me the concept of active vs. passive is the difference between working at making compost in contrast to just stacking up the stuff and letting it rot at its own pace.

All of last year's compost is gone — well, not actually gone, but used in parts of the garden. I expected to run short of the compost I made last year. I made it from pine needles, a photinia hedge, newspaper, grocery sacks and lots of bermudagrass lawn clippings from a friend.

Earlier this year, I shredded all of the pine needles stacked in the yard during the winter and had a good-sized pile of "brown stuff" just waiting for the "green stuff" so I could get started on my new compost pile.

My friend's bermudagrass finally grew, and I got the first batch of clippings — 15 garbage bags worth. Then I started the composting process: alternating layers of shredded needles and grass clippings until I ran out of clippings and ended up with a pile about 4 feet high.

One week and several good rains later, the pile had settled to about 2 feet high. I turned it, added another eight bags of clippings and some water. That hot job completed, I took the remaining bags of moist, green clippings and made a second pile with more of the shredded pine needles. Next week I'll have two piles to turn.

What can anyone possibly do with all that compost? It's called soil improvement. I noticed a few years ago that plants grew better when I mixed compost into the planting holes and then mulched with compost. Since organic matter is constantly depleted from the soil, there is always the need to replenish it with compost. The bigger your garden, the more you need.

The soil improvements contributed by compost are a little bit of nutrients and a whole lot of soil texture improvement. Clay soils are opened up, drain better and are easier to work, while sandy soils hold more moisture. The plants love it.

The green matter mixed with the brown matter gives the bacteria and fungi that make compost what they like. The dry, brown pine needles lack moisture and nitrogen, two things grass clippings have in rich supply. The grass clippings are low in carbon and the pine needles supply it.

When the proper balance is achieved, the compost pile gets hot and the breakdown is rapid. Even so, the grass breaks down a lot faster than the pine needles, so a new supply of fresh grass clippings mixed in periodically helps the pine needles break down.

Backyard composting is something all gardeners should consider. As it becomes more difficult to dispose of yard waste in landfills, gardeners will have to pay someone to haul off their yard waste, compost it themselves or try to find someone who needs it.

Mail facilities dedicated to the late Larkin I. Smith

On July 11, the U.S. Postal Service will designate two south Mississippi postal facilities in honor of the late Congressman Larkin I. Smith.

A bill, introduced by U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor and passed by Congress, designated the Gulfport general mail facility as the Larkin I. Smith General Mail Facility and the Poplarville post office as the Larkin I. Smith Post Office.

Both Poplarville and Gulfport were homes to Smith. In Poplarville he served as deputy sheriff, working in the Pearl River County Sheriff's Department until 1972.

Five years later he was appointed Chief of Police of Gulfport and was later elected Sheriff of Harrison County. On Nov. 8, 1988, he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Smith served as a distinguished member of the House of Representatives during the 101st session of Congress until a tragic plane accident took his life.

Dedication of the Poplarville post office, 301 Main Street, will begin at 10 a.m. The Gulfport mail facility, 11110 Hwy. 49, will be dedicated a few hours later. That ceremony will begin at 2 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

By Caril V. Stephens
Social Security
Gulfport

How much money is needed to assure a comfortable retirement? Many financial analysts recommend that middle-income Americans need a replacement rate of about 80 percent of pre-retirement earnings.

Too often, people never think about where that money will come from until it's too late to do much about it.

Social Security retirement benefits replace about 42 percent of an average earner's pre-retirement earnings. Social Security is a financial base on which most retirees can build.

Some critics of the program say they could do a lot better than Social Security in providing for their retirement. I would encourage them to make the effort, because a partnership with each worker is what was originally intended.

When the original Social Security Act was passed almost 60 years ago, Social Security retirement benefits were thought of as part of a "three-legged stool." The other two financial "legs" were (1) personal savings and investments and (2) employer pensions.

What if an individual is either wise enough or lucky enough, through investments and pensions, to duplicate Social Security's replacement rate of 42 percent of earnings for an average individual? He or she would then reach an 84 percent figure and assure themselves a comfortable retirement.

If you do a little less well, the effort is still all to the good because you will have more than just Social Security to rely on.

A good starting point for any analysis of what you will want or need for your retirement years is a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement that is available free from Social Security. Just call 1-800-772-1213 and one of our representatives will be happy to help you.

Good Times

Residents of Clermont Harbor turned out Saturday for the Fourth of July parade sponsored by the Old Forest Marching and Social Club. The parade, made up of decorated vehicles of all descriptions, wound through the neighborhood and stopped at several locations for liquid refreshments. Grand Marshals were George Baxter, Ron Erickson and Colin Klein of Jubilee Casino and Bob Walker, D.J. The revelers started off by assembling on Poinsett for some music, dancing and cold drinks. The Dixieland Saints Band provided the music, then loaded aboard their own truck float for the procession. Jubilee Casino's mime, Monte, made merry by dancing with one of the younger Independence Day celebrants. (Echo staff photos by Charlee Marshall)

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

- STICK TO THE FACTS
Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.
- BE HONEST
Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyer's trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.
- SPELL IT OUT
Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?
- THE BOTTOM LINE
State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon hearing the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.
- BE THERE
List the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be "bided" with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.
- ASK US
If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. You can't keep a 16-inch redfish until August 1, 1994. I had to say that first thing so as to clear up some confusion that exists about the new rule on redfish.

The new rule was passed by the Department of Wildlife Fisheries and Parks at their meeting held on June 30, 1994. It is true that the size limits on redfish have been reduced to the same size as is currently in effect for our neighboring states of Louisiana and Alabama.

It is true that the biological data supports the reduction in the legal size redfish that may be caught and kept. It is true that now the fishermen who fish close to shore can keep the smaller redfish that are all over the place in shallow water. But you can't do that until August 1. The law requires there be a 30-day waiting period from the time an ordinance is passed until it becomes the law.

There was strong support from the average fisherman for the change of the size limits on redfish from 22 inches to 16 inches. Most folks have expressed a great deal of dismay as to why the size limit was set at 22 inches for the past five or so years.

Folks felt our neighboring states must have known something we did not know to set their limits at 16 inches.

Anyway, petitions were signed by over 5,000 fishermen along the Coast and presented to the DWF&P to change the size limits.

Biological data supported the size reduction. It just goes to show, when the recreational fishermen really want something and unite, they can get action. The 5,000 signatures were obtained in just under three weeks. It was an awesome sight when those petitions were presented to the bureaucrats.

Next item on the agenda. You need to renew your fishing license. They expired on June 30. A new license is needed for you to fish between now and June 30, 1995.

The new license will be in short supply most of the month of July. I am told the green men with the flashing blue lights will be understanding for at least a few weeks. Not longer than that.

Last year was the first year the new saltwater fishing license was in effect. Somewhere around 40,000 saltwater licenses were issued.

The saltwater license is one of the most important things a recreational fisherman can buy. The license created a data pool to determine how many recreational fishermen go saltwater fishing. This is extremely important data as it provides the statistics necessary to show the economic contribution recreational saltwater fishermen make to the state.

In short, how much money recreational fishermen spread around. As the debate between the resource users gets more heated each year, it will become more and more important to be able to show the difference between the economic contribution of recreational usage versus commercial usage of the fisheries resource.

The license fee benefits everyone by providing money for enforcement of saltwater fishing laws and research. Ongoing fisheries research is needed to ensure the future of the resource. Law enforcement is needed to ensure the fair distribution of the resource to everyone.

The new Mississippi Commission on Marine Resources was sworn in on July 1, 1994. This commission will replace BMR. It will be responsible for the management of coastal resources. They will meet on the third Monday of each month at 9 a.m. in the Old BMR building located in the Edgewater Mall in Biloxi.

Anyone interested in coastal resources might want to consider attending these meetings, if for no other reason than to just see what is "going on."

The commission was created by the State Legislature to replace the controversial BMR. The seven members of the commission are required to come from the Coast.

There are to be two commissioners from each county and one representing the Fifth Congressional District. The commissioners are further broken down into interest categories.

There is to be one commissioner from the categories of commercial fisherman, recreational fisherman, seafood processor, charterboat, environmental, businessman — non-seafood related. They were set up this way to ensure fair balance for all of the user groups.

Now that all of the other stuff is out of the way, let's talk about the fishin'. In that vein I had a nice chat with some of the security folks from Jubilee Casino.

August is for 16-inch redfish

It seems the night shift is just about to blow their mind. The trout are so thick under the lights on the northwest corner that they say you can catch your limit with just a five-gallon bucket. One man said they were so thick, about 4 a.m. Tuesday, you could walk from one side of Bayou Caddy to the other and never get wet just by walking on the backs of the trout. It seems the lights are drawing bugs, minnows and other delicacies to the lights and driving the trout just plumb crazy.

A good point to remember during the months of July and August is, it is hot during the day (no-huh). This means the fish like to feed early in the morning or late at night.

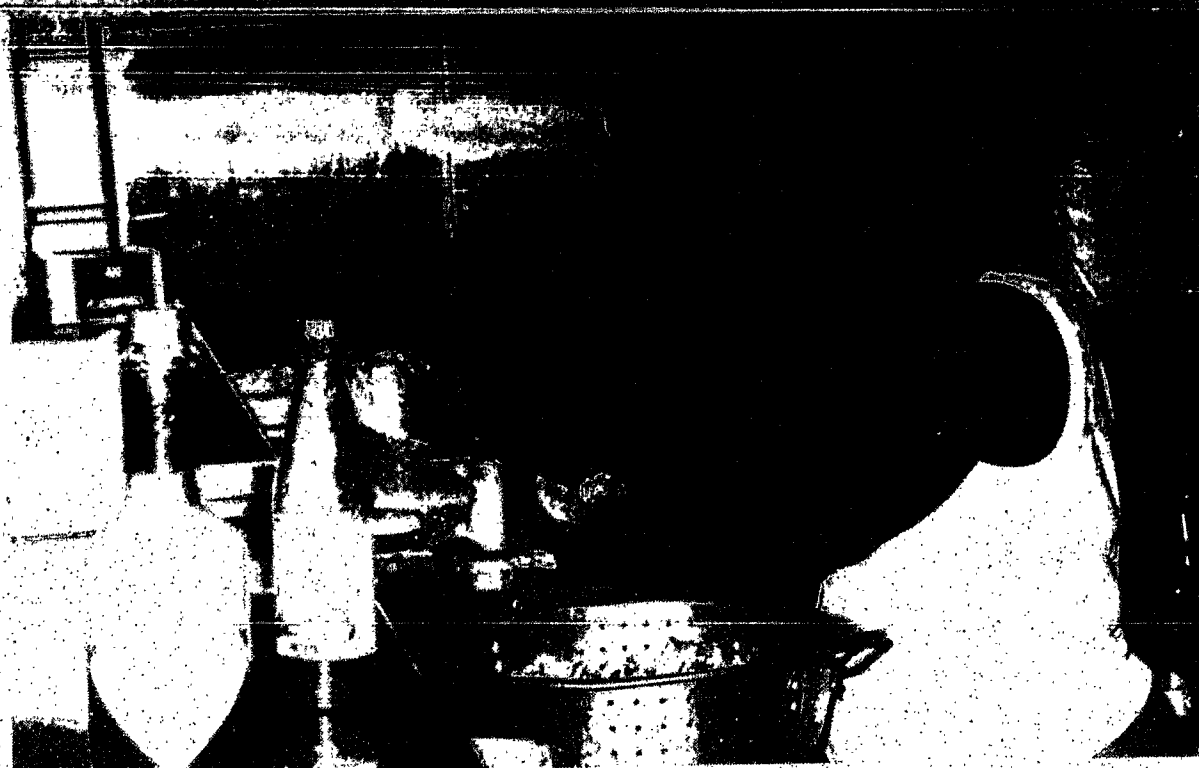

So, night fishing should produce the best results. The best place to night fish is where there are some lights.

The Ladner Pier, Bayou Caddy by the Jubilee, the Bay Bridge and so fourth. Under no circumstances should you try night wade fishing. Unless, of course, you like being shark bait. Sharks feed at night.

The nocturnal feeding habits of sharks have been producing some nice catch of Blacktip sharks off the Ladner Pier. Ask the pier ranger for the best time and location.

This week's wonderful wise words: Recreational fishermen need to speak up for what they want or they will be left behind.

Do you need a license to catch fish in a five-gallon bucket, Turtle?

Photos and Story By Sharon K. Saucier

Smoke is stinging their small eyes, the fumes are invading their tiny lungs. They begin to cough, a smoke alarm is heard blaring its high pitched scream into the night frightening them and causing their heart beats to quicken. How would your child react to this situation?

Well, thanks to the efforts of the Waveland Fire Department there are now 78 Hancock County children that will know what to do should the situation arise that their home catch on fire.

The question "O.K. kids, what are you supposed to do now?" was asked frequently by Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia and answers were shouted through the room as to how and what procedures should be used to exit a burning home.

Garcia and his dedicated group of fire personnel taught children throughout the county in the two day class held Monday and Tuesday of last week, safety procedures that they should follow, as well as made it a little competitive with the bucket brigade and other games.

The children were taught the history of fighting fires, what three elements are necessary to start a fire, types of smoke detecting devices, exit drills and they were also taught how to tie different types of firemen's knots, just to name a few things that were covered in the classes.

"I feel that we really made a difference. There are now 78 homes that have been checked for fire hazards and the children have an evacuation route that they did not have before. I really think it was a success," Garcia said of the second annual event.

Garcia said that each year the department has learned what changes need to be made and they also learn a few things from the children that they teach.

"We may separate the children in the future more by ages than we have been," Garcia said.

A decision has not been made yet how the classes will be separated and what days the classes will be held next year.

"We really made a difference. These kids will make their parents think about what could happen. We really had a good class this year," Garcia said.

SSC tennis camp completes season

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The St. Stanislaus tennis camp has completed another season. The Shrimps, 7-9 year olds, and the Lobsters, 10-13 year olds, have learned to serve, volley, and groundstroke during their summer. However, all this did not come without sweat, toil, and hard work. They not only learned to do these fundamentals but others like baseball tennis, NBA tennis, Mini tennis, Volleyball tennis, Ping-Pong tennis, Clean up your Room tennis, and a host of other fun drills and relays.

The campers also received tips on scoring and grips, proper etiquette, and match play instruction. The tournament was run by SSC head coach Myron Labat and assistant camp director Myron Labat, Jr. The camp concluded with a singles tournament, awards presentation, and refreshments.

St. Thomas youths visit Keesler

On June 26 the Youth Activity Group of St. Thomas traveled to Keesler Air Force Base for its monthly excursion to see and learn about the Hurricane Hunters.

Jim Lowry, a member of the Hurricane Hunters, explained to the children what the Hurricane Hunters do and escorted them through the offices explaining procedure and showing them maps, computers and the equipment used on the ground and in the planes.

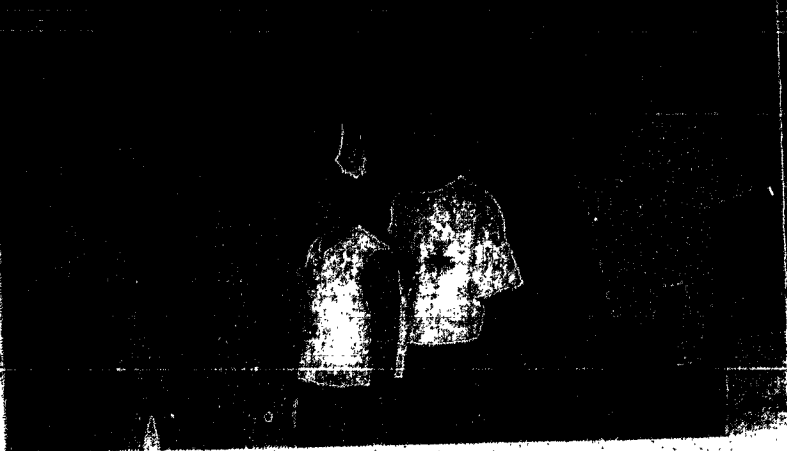

After the briefing in the offices, the group went to the planes and was given explanations of what the planes carry and what they do. The group also met the weather forecasters in base operations and a security policeman who guarded the flight line. After the trip the students enjoyed a chicken dinner at the church.

Plans for the Youth Activities Group have been worked out for the next few months. The projects include a Sunday afternoon of swimming, a barbecue, lots of games, a gala occasion with a Thanksgiving theme and The Feast of St. Nicholas.

There will be a raffle of Christmas wreaths, the blessing of the candy canes, and later a party under the Christmas tree with St. Nicholas and Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus present.

All second through sixth grade students are welcome to this group. They meet once a month at the church at 5303 Diamondhead Circle. Call 255-9213.
